P R E F A C E XVII field manual on this subject ( FM 100-5 ) states that future major battles will likely be conducted within an integrated battlefield. This doctrine envisions the air-land battle to be characterized by deep attacks against follow-on echelons behind the front lines, principally through increased coordination of ground and air op-erations. The overall battlefield will be extended beyond the more traditional front lines and will encompass conventional, elec-tronic, chemical, and possibly nuclear weapons, In viewing this future change in the characteristics of future battles, some ob-servers have raised the important question of whether by adapt-ing military organization and tactics to the projected technology of the battlefield of the future, we run the risk of undermining the sources of social support that have historically sustained soldiers in battle. Those who are most concerned with this possibility appear to be primarily influenced by the two major considerations. One is the low personnel density...
