Not illustrated. 1812 Excerpt: . . . world which I had never seen before could possibly come amiss to me. It was, however, some time before we could get a ship to our mind; and when we got a vessel, it was not easy to get English sailors; that is to say, so many as were necessary to proceed on the voyage, and manage the sailors which we should pick up there. A Her s me time we got a mate, a boatswain, and a gunner, English; a Dutch carpenter, and three Portuguese foremast men. With these we found we could do well enough, having Indian seamen, such as they are, to make up. There are so many travellers who have written the history of their voyages and travels this way, that it would be but very little amusement to any body, to give a long account of the places we went to, and ti e people who inhabit them. Those things I leave to others, and rferthe reader to those journals and travels of Englishmen, many of which f tmd are published, and more promised every day. It is enough for me to tell you, that we mane the voyage to Achin, -in the island of Sumatra, first; and from thence to Siam, where we exchanged some of our wares for opium, and for some arrack; the fcrst, a commodity which bears a great price among the Chinese, and which, at that time, was very much wanted there. In a word, -we...
